Q: What is your professional or volunteer background?

A: I retired from a career in education, most of that time as an administrator in community colleges. In line with that, I served on the boards of local, state and national professional organizations as well as a national foundation. In addition to leadership roles, I was always a “worker bee”, helping support fundraising and student events at the colleges where I worked. After I retired and moved back to the Madison area, I volunteered weekly for Middleton Outreach Ministries and continue to volunteer for special projects. I also volunteer for the Madison Public Library Foundation’s book festival.

Q: What do you like to do when you’re not volunteering for Capitol Lakes?

A. I enjoy the many activities downtown Madison and the nearby UW have to offer. I’m particularly looking forward to the UW Volleyball games, the re-opening of live music and the great lectures at the UW.
